

ABSTRACT

A method of creating a multi-layered monolithic circuit structure wherein individual layers of standard alumina thick film ceramic substrate and the resistors, inductors, capacitors, and other circuit componentry printed thereon are fired, and the circuit componentry trimmed or otherwise adjusted to achieve a desired degree of precision prior to combining the layers with a thick film glass bonding agent to form the monolithic structure.